

W. J. and Courier

BY BOUTELLE BROTHERS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle Brothers, and communications intended for publication should be addressed to "Editor of Whig and Courier."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1897.

Ex-Senator Hill appeals for harmony in the Democratic party, but Mr. Bryan who claims to speak for the organization, says that harmony is out of the question unless the "bold" progressives accept sixteen to one in the party creed.

The President's message was a great disappointment to those papers that are carefully watching for an opportunity to criticize the Administration. There was an entire absence of anything like logic in the document. The relief resolution was temporally defeated in the House by the disposition of Mr. Bailey to settle it with the resolution to recognize Cuban self-government. The administration will probably pass it at the next session, however.

Brother Chapman has gone to jail owing to his refusal to answer the questions asked by the Senate. We are told that he has two cells luxuriously fitted up and his meals are sent in from a hotel employing a more up-to-date chef than the jail affords. Under these circumstances he will suffer no bodily discomfort save from the confinement and this will amount to nothing in comparison with the success of this style of advertising. Chapman is now safe all the business can be carried on. His partitions will keep him that transactions with him are indeed confidential.

The Springfield Republican remarks: "What an irony on statesmanship! that a man dubbed 'Fire Alarm' should be placed in the Senate powder magazine." What an irony on journalism that an ass should be in a position to criticise a statesman sharply because other long-eared creatures of his kind have dubbed him Fire Alarm." Senator Parker has yet to define his position in the Senate, but he certainly hasn't nothing in the past to incur the hostility of such papers as the Republican. The very act which won for him the title of 'Fire Alarm' forsooth, his indignant protest when Mr. Grover Cleveland, who'd let his lighting by proxy, proposed to return the rebel flag, secured for him a high place in the admiration of loyal citizens everywhere.

The Senate can act with promptness when it so desires. On Monday the Senate listened to the reading of the President's message, prepared and passed a resolution appropriating $50,000 for the suffering Americans in Cuba in exactly eighteen minutes. This was a most commendable performance, but the Senate should not overlook the fact that there are suffering Americans nearer than Cuba. They have been suffering for some time now from a general stagnation of business and the consequent loss in wages. The House has passed a bill to relieve this condition and the Senate certainly ought not to confine its zeal to Cuba. It was not deemed necessary to enter into a profound discussion of the merits of this relief resolution, and the tariff has been the subject of discussion in both branches of Congress for a much longer period than this Cuban situation, hence the necessity for an extended debate is not apparent especially in view of the urgency of the case.

The last Paris Exposition had its Eiffel tower, Chicago had its Ferris wheel, Nashville has its giant seawall. The department of concessions of the Omaha Trans-Mississippi Exposition of 1898 has also received an application for space for the erection of a novel mechanical device. It resembles the framework of a gigantic umbrella more than anything else which might be mentioned. The part corresponding to the stick of the umbrella is a immense cylinder, thirty feet in diameter, constructed of steel plates, firmly riveted, making a "stand-pipe" which rises to a height of 250 feet above the level of the ground. At the extreme top of this cylinder are fastened twelve long arms resembling the ribs of an umbrella. These are steel trusses, reaching almost to the ground. At the lower end of each of these ribs are suspended a car for carrying passengers, each car having a capacity for twenty persons. These monster ribs are raised by hydraulic power acting by means of steel cables operating through the cylinder, aided by a mechanism greatly resembling that portion of an umbrella which comes into action when the umbrella is opened. By means of this mechanism the glistening arms are raised until they are horizontal, the car in the meantime being carried outwards and upward until they reach a point 250 feet above the ground, the diameter of the huge circle formed by the suspended cars being also 250 feet. When the highest point has been reached another mechanism comes into play, and the suspended cars are swung slowly around in a circle, after which they are lowered to the ground. The sides of the cars are of glass, so that the passengers may secure an extensive view of the surrounding country.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection, but it cannot stand the plausible farce undertaken at this late day by some of the Democrats who opposed the Chicago ticket to set up the charge of bad faith against the Republicans who are carrying out their platform pledges. It says:

"The Courier Journal is strongly opposed as 'any one to the Republican tariff policy, but it does not see fit to believe it is to be blamed for the cause of those who are unwise by unwise. Those sound money Democrats who voted for McKinley did so in full knowledge of his complete confidence in his financial views, but because, as between him and Bryan, one of whom was bound to be elected, they picked McKinley. They voted for him not so much to elect McKinley as to beat Bryan. The people would have preferred to elect a sound money Democrat, but that was out of the question. They would have preferred other Republicans to McKinley, but they had no opportunity of an election. With them it was Bryan or McKinley, from which the former was the Republican preference."

Up to his neck in debt, McKinley's financial views were decided otherwise. Not so his protection views. He could not afford to be explicit for gold and silver after the publication of his nomination on his platform record, nor his monetary record. He never sought to conceal either the fact that he had been forced to accept the money issue to the last. None better on the market, as their record shows, is to be found in Bangor and vicinity than any other kind. References sent on application to the agents.

Stamping Out Fraud!

There are two things I concealed with the Louisville Courier Journal that will never be questioned, namely, its Democracy and its devotion to free trade. It seldom fails, as opportunity arises, to strike a blow at protection

